AUSSIE ENGLISH

G'DAY, Australia

COMMON EVERYDAY WORDS/ SLANG EXPRESSIONS

Firstly, let me say that Australians don't speak British English. In Aussie English (Aussie- Australian), there are hundreds of slang expressions and different sayings that it would be impossible to explain them all in this post. Since living away from Australia, I have noticed many other foreigners, especially Americans, find some of the common words I use different, and in some cases funny.

Here are some of the common everyday Australian words and sayings.

Mate/ G'day mate

In Australia everyone is your mate.

"Mate" is a way to say friend or colleague in Australian English. It has become a iconic expression for Australia and is used with people you don't even know.

"G'day mate!" = "Good day mate" *can be used to greet someone at any time of the day.

Mate is a synonym for partner, or someone you share something with. Other terms with mate include; workmate, schoolmate, classmate, housemate

What do you reckon? I Whaddaya rekon?

This expression means "What do you think?" reckon = think

Although this phrase is used in other types of English, Australians tend to use this term on a frequent basis.

- -"Whaddaya reckn of my new car?"
- -"I reckon she's a beauty!!"

Youse

Youse is one of the biggest grammar mistakes made by Australians on a daily basis. This word is used so commonly that most people don't even know that it's incorrect.

In Australian English "youse" is used as the plural form of "you." The correct plural of you is you. In other places people have a tendency to say you guys or you all/ya'll.

"What are youse looking at?"

"I haven't seen youse around, are you lost or something?"

No worries

This one is also big in British English, but I believe the Australians definitely use is more often. No worries is a way to say you're welcome or no problem.

"Hey thanks for helping me out mate." "No worries!"

Cheers

I know you're probably thinking that people say cheers all over the world as a way of celebrating before you drink a beer, but in Australian English it is used to say thank you. It's also used when you say goodbye to someone in an informal way.

- -"Here are those TPS reports you asked for Bob."
- "-Ahh, cheers mate!"

Are you keen?

The word keen means to be eager, excited or interested in something.

In Australia we use this to ask friends to join us in doing something or to get people excited about something.

"Hey there's going to be a John Butler show tonight, are youse keen?"

Heaps / Heaps good

Heaps is used as a quantifier just like a lot of. A lot of people / Heaps of people

In Australian informal English, we use the expression "heaps good" to say that something is or was really good.

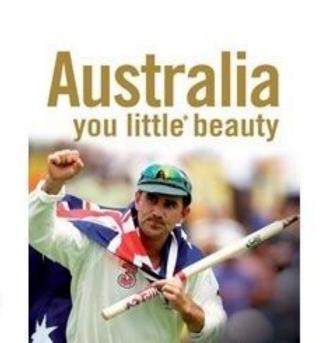

"How was the show last night?" "It was heaps good!"

"Were there many people there?" "Yeah, heaps!"

You little beauty / you little ripper (You little rippa)

Both of these terms are used in the same way to celebrate or to show excitement about something. Even though we use the word beauty, these expressions are never used to express beauty.

- -"The Wallabies just beat the All blacks!" "You little ripperrrrr!!!
- "You little beauty!! There's going to be a holiday next Friday, that means we get a ling weekend."
- *The Wallabies are the Australian Rugby team, the Allblacks are from New Zealand (Australia's rival).

AUSSIE GENTLEMAN

G'day mate

Pleased to make your acquaintance.

He's Blotto

Inebriated beyond the capacity to stand up.

You little ripper!

Words of praise fail me.

Rack off

Your presence is no longer required.

Fair dinkum

Of course I'm telling the truth.

Pull ya head in

You may be correct in your assertion but shut up.

Wanna Rage?

Would you like to drink vast amounts of alcohol with me until we both drop?

You Drongo

A rather dimwitted person.

If you value your well being you should buy the next drink.

Go on

I'm not entirely convinced you know what you're talking about.

Whadayawant?

Might I enquire about your needs?

Have a Chunder

The delicate act of regurgitation.

You pong

Dear me, we do smell don't we.

Bloody oath!

I'm in total agreeance with you.

Howya going?

May I enquire about your welfare?

Give it a go ya mugi

Are you perhaps incapable of performing this act?

Stereotypical Australians and their Sland

- · Bloke a man
- Sheila- A woman
- Dunny

 the toilet
- Cricky mate— Oh my god *r.i.p. Steve Irwin
- · Fair dinkum- It is true

Stereotypical Australians and their sland

- Bloke a man
- Sheila- A woman
- · Dunny- the toilet
- Cricky mate— Oh my god *r.i.p. Steve Irwin
- · Fair dinkum- It is true

AUSSIE SHEILA

Wanna cuppa?
Would you care
for some tea?
Go and tart

yourself up.
Please dress
in your best clothes.

Wanna come to our piss up? You are invited to our party

How ya goin' luv? I hope you are feeling well

Don't get your knickers in a knot Don't upset yourself

What's the latest goss? any juicy news

The old man's shot through My husband's left town

Get stuffed bitch Leave whenever you like Shut

Tell someone who cares

Don't crap on Aren't you exaggerating?

Could I bot a fag?

May I have one of your cigarettes?

Grouse lippy
What a nice shade
of lipstick

Conclusion

Like most other styles of English, whether it be American or British, to perfect the language you need to have a lot of contact with that accent and be exposed to that culture.

If you would like to work on your Australian accent and pick up some common Australian terms, I suggest you look for Australian media online and spend a couple of months watching Australian movies, T.V. series, listen to Australian music.

To learn more about Australian expressions, both the common ones and the older stereotypical ones, take a look at this website and start practicing your Aussie lingo (lingo- colloquial language). http://www.goingrank.com.au/glossary.html

https://reallifeglobal.com/speak-australian-english-australian-slang-expressions/

