I'm a teen, therefore I'm bad

There are so many pressures on us teenagers – it's unbelievable! We have to behave, look and even talk in a certain way! Adults and parents don't understand us and we always seem to irritate them too much.

Paul, 16

I'm a teen, therefore I'm bad

Sometimes I feel that life isn't worth living at all. All my friends are gorgeous, they've got so many guys after them. And I am ugly! When I see my face in the mirror, it literally makes me sick! I'm just horrible!

Jane, 15

I'm a teen, therefore I'm bad

My mum is a single parent. She has two jobs can't afford to give us much money. I know I'm lucky to have a roof over my head and a family who loves me, but sometimes I feel so sad. I'm the only one in my class without a mobile phone. And I wish I have some pocket money too.

Nick, 15

I'm a teen, therefore I'm bad

I'm 13 years old and I'm an Internet addict. I spend 8-10 hours a day chatting. Why? Because people on the Net care about me.

Sam, 13

I'm a teen, therefore I'm bad

We have constant pressure from TV, Internet, magazines, billboards and parents, as to how we should act. Our society places a lot of emphasis on perfection and winning, so it's not surprising that so many teenagers across the world are lacking in self-esteem.

Jim, 17

Test yourself

❖ Mostly Yes

Your self-image tends to be dictated by others. Try learning to be more assertive and stick up for yourself, and focus on things that you are good at, and you enjoy doing. Be nice to yourself, respect yourself, and others will do the same.

❖ Mostly No

You have a strong self-image, a strong sense of purpose in life, and you are aware of your strengths and weaknesses. Be careful about becoming too big-headed.

❖ Mixed Answers

You feel rather positive about yourself, but you may feel a little insecure from time to time. Remind yourself of your strengths and achievements, instead of thinking about your weaknesses and insecurities.
