The Queen and Parliament.

It is rather difficult to understand the British way of ruling the country. In Britain the Queen is the Head of State, but in fact she doesn't rule the country as she has no power. The Queen is the symbol of the country, its history and its traditions. She is very rich. She travels about the UK, meets different people and visits schools, hospitals and other special places.

At the beginning of the twentieth century many countries all over the world were ruled by Britain. Among them were the British colonies and they were all part of the British Empire.

The real power in the country belongs to the British Parliament and to the British Government. The British Parliament has 2 houses: the House of Commons and the House of Lords.

The British way of life.

During your 4 years of English classes you have already learnt a lot about the language and the people who speak it. Here are some facts about the British way if you want to compare it with life on the continent.

In England many things are the other way round. On the continents people seldom speak about the weather. On the continent Sunday papers appear on Monday; in England they appear on Sunday. On the continent, some people like cats, others don't but in England cats are very special animals. Everyone loves them and takes care of them. On Sundays on the continent even the poorest person puts on best suit and tries to look nice and respectable. In England even the richest man dresses in some old clothes and doesn't shave.

12Mr. Martin

Mr. Martin had never married. He lived alone in a small house in a village situated in the south of Wales. Mr. Martin never felt lonely. He was very much interested in many different things. He tried to get as much information as possible about the UK, the Royal Family and its history.

He wanted to know what the government was doing about the lives of poor people in big industrial cities. Mr. Martin studied the law seriously and often had long talks about the problems of power in the country with his neighbour, a former lawyer. He had very interesting plans to offer, plans how to make the work of Parliament better. But he was especially interested in the problems of health.

13Popular British sports and games.

The British people like everyone else like sports and games. But if they are asked to name their favourite sport they will probably name football, cricket and tennis, though many of them go in for such sports as golf and hockey, athletics and climbing, horse riding, rugby and rowing.

Britain invented and developed many of the sports and games which are now played all over the world. Football is one of them. It is spread all over the country- in England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland. Cricket is another popular summer sport. It is sometimes called the English national game. Nowadays this summer game, which is typically British, is played in schools, colleges and universities and in most towns and villages of Britain.
