A large, thick black cursive letter 'S' is shown on a set of four horizontal handwriting lines: a solid top line, a dashed middle line, a solid baseline, and a solid descender line. A red starburst icon marks the starting point of the letter at the top of the dashed middle line. The letter starts with a short upward stroke, curves down and to the left, loops around to the right, crosses itself, and ends with a small loop on the baseline.

Handwriting practice for the Hebrew letter Het (ח). The image shows the letter in its cursive form, written on a set of three horizontal lines (top solid, middle dashed, bottom solid). The letter is composed of two main strokes: a large, sweeping curve that starts at the bottom left, goes up and over the middle dashed line, and then curves back down to the bottom line; and a second, smaller curve that starts at the bottom line, goes up and over the middle dashed line, and then curves back down to the bottom line. Two blue squares are placed below the bottom line, one under the first curve and one under the second curve, indicating the starting points for the strokes.
