A detailed illustration of a prehistoric marine environment. A large, dark-colored shark with a lighter underbelly is the central focus, swimming towards the left with its mouth wide open, showing sharp teeth. Two smaller, similar-looking fish are positioned to the right of the main shark, one above and one below it. The background is a murky, brownish-grey water with some faint, dark shapes that could be rocks or other marine life. The overall style is that of a classic scientific or educational illustration.

It has a long, dark brown body with a lighter, yellowish-brown patch on its chest and a similar patch on its right leg. The head is small with a prominent brow ridge and a slightly protruding jaw. The background is a soft, out-of-focus landscape with green foliage and a yellowish sky.
